Today's Features

5 The Berlin Wall

Steve Berlin was in the process of breaking some records in this his final season. But, two weeks ago an injury on the first play of the Wake Forest game ended his Clemson career prematurely. Tim Bourret tells us what he meant to the Clemson team this year and his prospects for playing football in the future.

7 Mother-of-the-Year

Each year Tiger Brotherhood honors a woman who has meant a lot to the Clemson community. This year's recipient is Ms. Anne P. Collins. Maria Farry discusses her involvement with Clemson.

50 When CBS Comes to Town

If you turn on a college football game on CBS for that three hour broadcast you are missing many of the behind-the-scenes activities. Producers, directors and technicians start preparing for a national broadcast in July. Jill Mixon takes us behind the scenes with the CBS people who really run the show.

61 University Feature

Last week the Strom Thurmond Institute was opened on the Clemson campus. It is a significant accomplishment for this University and for all Clemson graduates. Margaret Lamb gives us a tour of this new Clemson landmark.

73 Golden Knights

For the last three years there has been some type of wild spectacle at a selected November home game. Two years ago it was the balloons, last year it was the flash cards. In 1985 it is the Golden Knights Parachute team. Jeff Rhodes tells us about the aerial display we will see today.

77 Senior Spotlights

For many Clemson seniors this is a special day. They are playing their final game in Death Valley in an attempt to bring Clemson another ACC title. Tim Match reviews the careers of some Clemson seniors on page 77.

79 This Day in Tiger Football

The Tigers have had many significant victories on the gridiron on November 16. Sam Blackman takes us back and reviews some of the more colorful games.

107 Football Evolution

If you look closely in the Clemson press guide you will find a new section called all-time starting lineups. Take a close look at the sizes of some of the players in the 1920s and compare them with the William Perrys of today. Sam Blackman documents the changes in players' sizes.

112 The Last Word

Bob Bradley's last word for the 1985 season discusses the Maryland series. It has been a challenging one for the Tigers.

Today's Game

By Tim Bourret

Everything always seems to come down to the Maryland game. That's the way it has been for Clemson football over the last seven seasons, or since Danny Ford has been the head coach. If you look back over the years the contest with the Terps has usually been the make or break game. Once again that is the situation this afternoon as Maryland and Clemson tangle on CBS-TV with bowl bids and conference title implications on the line.

No, we don't have a situation like we had in 1978 when the victor was in a winner-take-all situation regarding the ACC title. But, it is important for both teams. Clemson still has a mathematical chance to win the ACC title, but the first thing the Tigers must do is beat Maryland in its last conference game. Then, the pins have to fall in Clemson's favor, but the chances are similar to a 7-10 split in bowling.

Just in case you are interested: If Clemson beats Maryland, North Carolina beats Virginia and Wake Forest beats Georgia Tech this afternoon, (and that last one is a big if) the Tigers could become ACC champs by the end of the month if Duke beats North Carolina and Virginia wins at Maryland in the remaining two conference games. The scenario for a tie for the conference championship is a little simpler. All that has to happen there is for Clemson to beat Maryland, Wake Forest to beat Georgia Tech and Virginia to win at Maryland. Then Clemson would be tied with either Virginia or North Carolina.

The best thing to do is view today's game in Memorial Stadium, watch TV and we will let you know if Clemson is going to win the ACC or not. Maryland vs. Clemson has been a top if not the top game of interest in the ACC for the last few years, as five of the last seven ACC champs have come from this game.

In 1978 the two teams were undefeated in league play and a Gator Bowl bid was on the line. Clemson won a thrilling 28-24 contest in which Steve Fuller hit Jerry Butler on a 87-yard score and Dwight Clark on a 62-yard strike. Steve Atkins had a 98-yard run from scrimmage to key Maryland's offense, but the Tigers held on and advanced to the Gator Bowl, finishing with a 17-15 win over Ohio State and an 11-1 record.

Maryland won the confrontation in 1979 and 1980, but N.C. State and North Carolina won the ACC titles those seasons, respectively. The 1981 season was a golden campaign indeed for the Tigers and Clemson clinched the ACC title with a 21-7 triumph over Maryland. Homer Jordan had the fourth best total offense figure in Clemson history (312 yards) in the game as the Tigers scored all of their points in the first half.

Clemson clinched a share of the ACC title in 1982 with a 24-22 victory in high winds at Maryland, a contest that was also televised by CBS. Clemson took a 24-7 lead behind the running of Cliff Austin, Chuck McSwain and Kevin Mack, all players who have gone on to pro football. But, Boomer Esiason, the leading passer in the American Football Conference these days, brought Maryland back to 24-22. With just one more opportunity, Billy Davis, playing his only play for the entire game, intercepted an Esiason pass in the final minute and the Tigers ran out the clock.

Maryland clinched the official conference championship at Clemson in 1983, but they did not do it with a victory over the Tigers. A North Carolina loss up the road gave the Terps the title the same day they lost at Clemson, 52-27. What has now become known as the "Balloon Game" was a landmark day for the Tigers in 1983 as the resounding victory moved Clemson into the top 10 in the AP poll. Kevin Mack raced for 186 yards in his last home game as Clemson held a 42-7 lead in the third period.

Last year, the Terps had the revenge factor on their side for the game in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium. The Terps ran for 406 yards on the ground and had 577 yards in total offense against the Tigers. Clemson actually led 23-17 in the third period, but the Terps scored the last 24 points of the game on the way to a 41-23 win and the ACC championship.

Kenny Flowers needs just 83 yards to reach the 2000 mark in his career.

Today's game figures to be an interesting matchup of comparative strengths. Clemson has gained over 250 yards rushing in each of the last five games and averaged over 270 yards rushing during this time frame. Clemson has 15 rushing touchdowns this year, 10 by Kenny Flowers. The Terps on the other hand have the best rushing defense in the ACC and have allowed just 2.6 yards per rush this season. Miami of Florida scored two touchdowns on the ground last Saturday in a 29-22 Miami win, but those are the only two rushing touchdowns Maryland has yielded this year.

There will also be an interesting individual matchup of running backs this afternoon, two players of contrasting styles. Clemson's Flowers and Maryland's Rick Badanjak have both scored exactly 10 touchdowns this season to tie for the ACC lead in touchdowns and to rank in a tie for second in scoring. Badanjak is a bull-dozer who would rather run over people than dance out of their way. The all-star candidate has played in 45 consecutive games for Maryland and has scored 47 total touchdowns. He has averaged 4.6 yards a carry over his career and has over 2400 yards rushing. He has scored 27 touchdowns in his career from the one or two yardline. He led the ACC in scoring last season with 102 points.

Flowers is a slashing, darting runner who can run over people, but would prefer to out-run them. The native of Daytona Beach, FL, needs just 83 yards today to become Clemson's ninth running back to go over 2,000 yards in a career, the first to do it by the end of his junior season. Flowers needs just 655 yards to become Clemson's all-time leading rusher and he still has another year to go. In 1985 he has 796 yards and a 5.2 average with four 100-yard games. He needs just one more 100-yard game to tie the single season record of five held by Fred Cone, Cliff Austin and Lester Brown.

There is also an interesting comparison at the wide receiver position. Clemson's Terrance Roulhac had four catches for 100 yards last week and has now caught at least one pass in 19 straight games. He is already seventh in career receptions and career reception yards, and third in touchdown receptions at Clemson. Azizuddin Abdur-Ra'oof sounds like he used to play soccer at Clemson, but the Nigerian wide receiver is one of the most consistent players on the Maryland team. "Ziz" has caught at least one pass in 21 straight games since joining Maryland as a red-shirted freshman and he is Maryland's top receiver this season. He had four catches for 123 yards against Vanderbilt last season and four for 116 yards against Wake Forest this year.

Defensively the top matchup figured to be Maryland's Bruce Mesner and Clemson's Steve Berlin. Berlin was leading the ACC in tackles per game by down linemen until he injured ligaments in a knee in the Wake Forest game and was lost for the year. He had 67 tackles and nine for losses in the first seven games. Mesner leads the Terps in sacks with 10 this year as the Terps lead the nation in that category with 50. Mesner has 80 tackles for the season and 14 tackles for minus yardage.

In the secondary, both teams have a pair of outstanding defensive backs at the safety and halfback positions. All four are All-ACC candidates for this season. The Covington brothers have combined for over 80 tackles this year in the secondary and have five interceptions between them. Keeta Covington has four of those thefts from his cornerback slot, while Al Covington leads the Maryland secondary in tackles with 60. They combined on an interception last week when a Miami pass hit Al in the helmet and Keeta caught it on the rebound.

A.J. Johnson and Delton Hall have combined for over 140 tackles this season from the free safety and cornerback slots, respectively. Johnson needs just five tackles today to break Terry Kinard's record for tackles in the secondary for one season, while Hall is second in the ACC in passes broken up with 10.

This marks the final home appearance for Clemson's senior class. This group of 13 seniors has done a fine job in terms of leadership of this very young Clemson team in 1985. The list of seniors in their final game in Death Valley includes, Mark Vaughan (punter), Adubarie Otorubio (placekicker), Kenny Danforth (safety), Eric Dawson (linebacker), Mike Isaacs (safety), Jeff Lytton (center), Andy Newell (punter), Wes Mann (offensive tackle), Stacey Driver (tailback), Steve Reese (guard), Steve Berlin (defensive tackle), Glen Brickley (center) and Eldridge Milton (linebacker). These players have led Clemson to a 30-10-1 record over the last four years, one of the finest records in Clemson history.

The Berlin Wall

By Tim Bourret

A classic idiom of sports states, "Records are made to be broken." Followers of Joe Dimaggio may think that is a fallacy, as his 56-game hitting streak is still alive, and just think of the thousands of baseball players who have a shot at the mark each season. That record may be jinxed.

Some might believe a record in the Clemson defensive annals is also jinxed, the record for tackles per game by a defensive lineman. Mark Heniford, a comparative unknown to some of Clemson's defensive linemen in recent years, owns the record at 9.5 tackles per game during the 1977 season (114 in 12 games).

Since that 1977 season, no less than nine defensive linemen who have signed pro contracts, including seven who have played in the NFL, have failed to break the mark. The list includes William Perry, the nation's most celebrated athlete these days, Jim Stuckey, who has two super bowl rings, and Jeff Bryant, a star with the Seattle Seahawks of the NFL.

Through seven games this year it appeared Steve Berlin, Clemson's senior defensive tackle, was going to challenge Heniford's record. After the first seven contests Berlin had 67 tackles, a 9.7 average, which exceeded Heniford's mark. He was playing consistent football and leading the Tiger defensive linemen in tackles day in and day out.

Then, Berlin's dream season came to a dramatic close on the first play of the Wake Forest game. Berlin's right knee buckled in the moist sod in Memorial Stadium and he fell to the ground in obvious, immediate pain.

"When I saw that I wanted to cry," said Clemson defensive coordinator Tom Harper. "Berlin has worked so hard and come so far this season he certainly deserved a better fate than that. I can say with all honesty that after seven games in the season he was the best defensive tackle I had ever coached.

"Time and again this year he saved us. He created things that turned games around, like at Duke when he forced a fumble."

Clemson was young up front this season, so Berlin, who was the youngster of the defense on the 1981 national championship team, had become the veteran of the line in 1985. "It was on my shoulders to show leadership this year because we were so young upfront," said Berlin, who will finish in the top 15 in Clemson history in total tackles (177). "I just took it upon myself to do the best I could this year and show the others by example."

Obviously, he did a good job of that, just ask Raymond Chavous, his backup most of the year, who is now a starter in light of Berlin's tragedy. "At halftime of the Wake Forest game we asked him to come out to the sidelines. I was just glad to see him out there even if he was on crutches, because just having him around made me feel more confident."

Berlin does face an uphill battle if he wants to continue playing football, but he can do it with hard work. And, there is a Clemson precedent in his favor according to team orthopedic surgeon Dr. Roland Knight, who performed the surgery on Berlin on November 4. "Steve had a serious knee injury involving ligament damage, but he can recover satisfactorily and play more football. He can still be a good player, but it will take a lot of hard work to do it. Overall it should be a nine month to a year recovery period before he can return to maximum effectiveness.

"He has an injury similar to the one Cliff Austin had in 1979. Cliff came back and had a very good career at Clemson (he set the single season rushing record in 1982) and is now playing pro football with the Atlanta Falcons."

For now Berlin must wear a cast for six weeks and watch his teammates from the sideline, something that still will be valuable to the Tigers according to Chavous. He had the pro scouts watching him in recent weeks and he can bring them back with that hard work. "I have had to work hard before and I will have to do it again. I am very disappointed because I was looking forward to playing a bowl and some all-star games. For now I am going to work hard with Dr. Knight and on my studies."

Steve Berlin's father is the head trainer for the Pittsburgh Steelers so he obviously will get some outstanding counseling at home as far as proper therapy is concerned. And, anyone who knows him and has followed his work habits believes that the day just might take place when his father, Ralph, is wrapping his own son's ankles and knees in Three River Stadium's home dressing room.

Steve Berlin was on a record pace prior to his injury against Wake Forest.

Mother-of-the-Year

By Maria Farry

Devoted, loyal, and caring are all words that can be used to describe a mother. Add to that a genuine concern for others, community and church involvement, and a deep-seated love for Clemson University, and you have all the qualities that led Tiger Brotherhood to select Mrs. Anne Pickens Collins as the 1985 Mother-of-the-Year.

A native of nearby Seneca, SC, Mrs. Collins was brought up in the beautiful foothills surrounding Clemson. She was the oldest of four children of Julius Fletcher Pickens and Ola Wilkinson Pickens. After graduating with honors from Seneca High School, Mrs. Collins accepted a scholarship to Greenville Women's College, now Furman University. Later, she attended the University of South Carolina School of Journalism.

On January 8, 1931, Mrs. Collins married the late Joel Wyman Collins, who was then a Clemson football player under former coach Josh Cody. He was a starting tackle by his sophomore year, and some of his teammates included General (coach) Bob Jones and the late Hall of Fame coach "Goat" McMillan.

Joel Collins, however, was not Mrs. Collins' first connection with Clemson University. Her late brother, Norman D. Pickens, graduated from Clemson in the mid 1930's. Since then, three of Mrs. Collins' six children have attended Clemson, and two of her grandsons, George E. Anderson and Richard W. Anderson, are presently attending the University, while two other grandsons attended in the 1970's.

In 1944, the Collins family moved to Chester, SC, where Mrs. Collins is still quite active in community and church activities. She has been recognized as an outstanding citizen in Chester for such efforts as organizing the Chester Little Theater, the Children's Theater, and the Arts Council of Chester County. In 1970, she served as a representative to the President's White House Conference on Aging, and she presently serves as a representative of Chester County to the Three Rivers Health System Agency, Inc.

Last February, Mrs. Collins was presented both the local and district "Service to Mankind" awards by the Chester Sertoma Club and the Sertoma District. The award was in recognition of her many services to the community, and in particular, her position as the Chester County Public Library Chairman of Trustees. She is responsible for spear-heading the recent drive to build a new county library. Mrs. Collins spoke to business and civic groups in an effort to gain support for a $1 million bond referendum. In addition, she made requests for private contributions and grants in an attempt to alleviate some of the responsibility of the local taxpayers. As a result, $300,000 was secured from the donations.

What is Tiger Brotherhood?

Today, the Brotherhood is a local, selective, honorary fraternity. It still embraces the same basic tenets as established by its founders, led by Professor John Logan Marshall, in 1929. Enamored with ritual, the Tiger Brotherhood promotes high standards of social and ethical conduct, while recognizing in its members an earnest devotion to Clemson, coupled with the integrity of character commensurate with the atypical Clemson Gentleman.

Tiger Brotherhood embodies an unequalled cross-sectional representation of the Clemson community. Students, faculty and staff all work within the bonds of brotherhood to champion a closer relationship. One for all and all for one, with Clemson its many traditions and undying spirit as our central focus, today provides viable, flexible and continuing forum for ideas and unending service to Clemson.

In addition to her civic efforts, Mrs. Collins is an active member of Bethel United Methodist Church, where she serves as church historian, a Sunday school teacher, and she is on the church's Official Board.

Mrs. Collins has even tested her skills as a writer. In 1982, she published a book entitled History of Chester County. In the same year, she also co-authored Heritage History of Chester County.

At present, Mrs. Collins stays quite busy with her various civic efforts. But in addition to those, she is President and Broker-in-Charge of Joe Collins Realty, Inc., which she and her husband founded together in 1954. Mr. Collins was a very early member of IPTAY, and Mrs. Collins has kept up his gold card membership since his death.

Mrs. Collins has six children. The oldest, Joe Ann Collins Dickinson, is a graduate of Winthrop College as are two other daughters, Nancy Hines Collins Anderson and Margaret Kathleen Collins Boshamer. Dr. Andrew Pickens Collins is a 1957 graduate of Clemson and is a practicing orthodontist in Durham, NC. The other men of the family are Joel Wyman Collins, Jr., a 1965 Clemson graduate and a member of Tiger Brotherhood and Richard Wilkinson Collins.

It takes a very special lady to devote all of her time, effort, and love to her own children, as well as an entire community. Mrs. Ann Pickens Collins is just that type of lady, and Tiger Brotherhood proudly salutes her as Clemson's 1985 Mother of the Year.

Victory Peal Symbolic of Clemson's Progress

If the Tigers win the game today, listen for the Victory Peal resounding over the campus in celebration.

In June, the first six bells of a proposed 47-bell carillon were installed in Tillman Tower, where they chime the hour and play the Victory Peal, the first four notes of the Westminster Chime.

The peal, which will ring at graduation and other campus celebrations, is symbolic of the progress Clemson University has made in the past year. For example:

- Students, faculty and staff found a new best friend with LUIS, a computerized library system that allows them to check the status of library holdings from anywhere on campus.
- After a successful fund raiser in Washington, D.C., groundbreaking ceremonies from the Strom Thurmond Institute were set for fall 1985, with Vice President George Bush scheduled to attend.
- With the addition of two new microscopes, Clemson's $1.6 million electron microscope lab became one of the best of its kind in the country, allowing users to magnify images more than 300,000 times.
- In competition with 152 other college units from across the country, the Air Force ROTC detachment marched away with the No. 1 ranking in the nation.
- Helene M. Riley became the first female department head at Clemson when she was named head of the department of languages.
- The South Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station dedicated its new $4 million Pee Dee Research and Education Center near Florence, and construction began on the new $9.5 million chemistry building behind Sistine Hall.
- Under a program approved by the state Commission on Higher Education, Clemson became the only institution in the state to offer a Ph.D. in computer engineering.
- In May, the university conferred 1,492 degrees — including the first Ph.D. in forestry — to the largest graduating class in Clemson's history.

University President

This has been a special year in the life of Walter Cox. Fifty years ago he enrolled at Clemson as a freshman after graduating from Belton (SC) High School. It is fitting that in his golden jubilee academic year with the University that he has become interim president of Clemson University.

Cox has served Clemson over the last five decades in a number of capacities on the academic side and the athletic side of life, and Clemson has become a lot better place because of his presence. Cox received his bachelor of science degree in June of 1939, then remained for another year to pursue graduate work. In February of 1940 he began his association with the University as a full-time employee as he became a line coach on Frank Howard's first team. He held the assistant coaching position until 1950. During this period he also served as the head baseball coach and as athletic ticket manager.

Cox gained his knowledge on the gridiron from Jess Neely and Frank Howard, two Hall of Fame Head Coaches. Cox played on the Clemson varsity football team between 1937 and 1939 and was an all-state selection in 1939. He was a member of Clemson's first bowl team, an eleven that downed Boston College in the 1940 Cotton Bowl. Cox earned three letters in football and the team had a 20-6-2 record during his career.

In 1942 Cox was called into the Armed Forces and served with the rank of lieutenant in the Fiji Islands, New Caledonia and Guadalcanal with the 147th infantry Regiment of the 37th Division.

In 1950 Cox moved on to the other side of campus as he brought his excellent administrative dexterity and knowledge to university administration. Between 1950 and 1955 he served as Director of Public Relations and Alumni Affairs and as an assistant to the vice president.

In 1955 he moved up to the position of Vice President for Student Affairs and Dean of Students, a position he had held the last 30 years until his most recent appointment on July 2. He has had a stellar career as University Vice President and has directed many programs that have benefited the overall quality of life at Clemson University.

During his three decades as Clemson's first vice president for student affairs and dean of students, Walter Cox guided the campus through a population explosion from 2,700 students in 1955 to more than 12,500 today, a span of years that includes such milestones in the University's development as the enrollment of women and the peaceful desegregation of the institution. Under his leadership the programs and functions of the student affairs division have steadily expanded and improved to meet the changing and increasing needs of this dynamic student body.

Through the offices and departments of admissions and registration, student life, student health services, the University Union, housing, intramurals, intercollegiate athletics, bands, student financial aid, counseling and career services, university canteens, and the bookstore, the student affairs division that Cox has assembled performs essential student services to support and complement Clemson's academic mission. It provides students with special opportunities for intellectual, moral, cultural, spiritual and physical growth.

The success of the comprehensive and progressive approach Cox took as vice president for student affairs is evident in such services as the Counseling and Career Planning Center, which provides individual counseling and group programs on topics ranging from academic and personal concerns to time management and assertiveness training; the University Union, through which students devise, produce and participate in more than 800 varied activities each year; and Fike Recreation Center, a half-million-dollar complex of modern intramural sports and physical training facilities.

Walter Cox has an illustrious and honored history at Clemson University. He is one of only a handful of graduates to be selected to the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame and to also win the Clemson Medallion (1984) and the Distinguished Alumni Award (1963). He has truly run out of awards to win, but he still has the motivation to climb more mountains as an active university president. After 50 years of serving a university, most alumni retire to private life. Not Walter Cox, he serves his university from the highest level.

Walter Cox has served Clemson for 50 years.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson

Few Athletic Directors in the country have moved up the ladder as fast as Bobby Robinson. This past March the 39-year-old native of Columbia culminated a 12-year steady progression up the administrative steps to the position of Clemson Athletic Director. He succeeded Bill McLellan on Friday, March 8, 1985.

Robinson came to Clemson in 1970, not in athletics, but in the housing office. After three years he moved across campus to serve as an administrative assistant in the athletic department. "I started at Clemson in the housing office, but I came to Clemson to work in athletics," said Robinson. "No opening existed at the time so I had to wait until one opened up."

After serving the athletic department in every imaginable manner, he became business manager in 1975. Two years later he was named assistant athletic director and in 1980 he became associate AD. He held that title four years, but his responsibility moved to an area of strength in regard to the football and basketball programs in 1982.

While serving his administrative duties with vigor, he also coached the Clemson golf team between 1975 and 1983. During his time as the head coach Clemson won its only ACC title in golf and three times the Tigers participated in the NCAA tournament. In 1983, his final season as the head coach, he guided Clemson to a number-five national finish. Clarence Rose was one of three All-Americans to play for the Tigers during his tenure. Rose is now a successful member of the pro tour.

Thus, it is easy to see why Bobby Robinson is most qualified for the position of athletic director at Clemson University—he has done it all. He has been an administrator at all levels, he has worked in other areas in the University, he has been a head coach and he has handled the budgetary aspects needed to run an 8.5 million dollar program.

Robinson has done everything in the Clemson athletic department, but he concedes there is a big change between associate athletic director and athletic director. "I no longer can just look at what we could do in a situation, it has changed to 'what will we do'. The area of facilities is something I will be more involved in also. We have some of the best facilities in the nation and we want to continue to rank favorably in that area." Robinson already has formulated a 10-year plan for facilities as he has a keen interest in all sports at Clemson. Changes in the soccer facility and tennis facility are planned for the next few years.

All of these factors have allowed him to come to grips with what is necessary to be a leader of a national program such as the one at Clemson. "Our philosophy will always be the same. We're going to be as good as we can be and give our coaches and athletes the opportunity to compete and be successful. That is the primary goal from an athletic point of view.

"From the University point of view, we have to be as good as we can be, yet operate within the rules and be a force within this University. As long as we are within the University structure, we do report to people and we are not different from anybody else—we can be a very positive factor for this University. Our importance is no bigger than that of the English or math department."

Robinson has confidence in his staff, his athletes and the facilities at Clemson University. "We have a solid base in all areas and we are a very solvent athletic department. But, we need to get better, take everything that we have and broaden it. We can't stand still. We will look ahead within the framework of the University and work to expand our horizons. We want to be as good as we can be and be a vital part of this University and represent the State of South Carolina in a positive manner."

Robinson was born in Columbia and attended A.C. Flora High School. During his high school career he was a point guard for the basketball team and a third baseman in baseball. He also played a good bit of golf during his younger days and was a scratch golfer at one time. He did not play any high school sports as a senior because of a heat stroke suffered in the summer of 1963. He graduated from A.C. Flora in 1964 and enrolled at Furman.

Robinson graduated from Furman with a B.S. degree in business and political science in 1968. He was a member of the varsity golf team and was the president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity chapter at Furman. He worked in his family's real estate business for two years after receiving his degree from Furman.

Bobby Robinson has served Clemson as a successful coach and administrator since 1970.

For the past four years the Orange Aids Catalog marketing program has made it possible for Clemson alumni and IPTAY members to shop at home for quality Clemson products. The Orange Aids program provides officially licensed Clemson products and the proceeds go directly to support various university programs.

Last fall a new 6000 square foot retail outlet was opened adjacent to Gate 9 on the northwest corner of Memorial Stadium. The store features the finest in Clemson clothing, gifts, and souvenirs and is open all year long for your shopping convenience. Each catalog item and many more products are available.

You are encouraged to shop before and after each home football game, before home basketball games or each week-day when you visit the Clemson campus. You can also now enjoy a snack or pick-up tailgate supplies in the new ice cream bar located within the store.

If you did not receive a Fall '85 Orange Aids Catalog, please write to P.O. Box 2096, Clemson University, Clemson, SC 29632.

We thank you for your support and look forward to serving you in the upcoming year.

Clemson University has established a licensing program to protect the use of the University's name and insignias. Our proud heritage has created a demand by University students, fans, and alumni for products bearing the name and logos of our University to show their allegiance.

Our program is designed to protect the quality and integrity of products bearing the name and registered marks of our institution. Formal procedures for approval of products, artwork, and quality control of merchandise is in place.

We urge you to look for and buy officially Licensed Collegiate Products. A hang tag should be attached to all merchandise that has been approved by our University. We need and appreciate your cooperation.

If you have any questions or comments concerning this program, please contact Mr. Robert E. Ricketts, P.O. Box 31, Clemson, S.C. 29633 or telephone (803) 656-2101.

Clemson football fans owe Auburn some favors. Each of the first four football coaches in Clemson history came from Auburn, including John Heisman, the Hall-of-Fame Coach who laid the groundwork for the Clemson football tradition in the early years of this century.

In contemporary times, Clemson fans owe Auburn another favor, stemming from a friendship between Danny Ford and Pat Dye. Ford, Clemson's head coach since the 1978 Gator Bowl, was a player under Dye when the latter was an assistant coach under Bear Bryant at Alabama. The two became good friends and it was Dye who convinced Ford to pursue the coaching profession.

"Pat Dye and I were good friends when I was in my senior year in college and I was wondering what I was going to do with my life," said Ford. "Coach Dye was the one who pushed me to ask Coach Bryant about a graduate assistantship. He put me on the staff and I have been in coaching ever since."

Clemson fans are certainly happy Ford entered the profession because he has brought a solid program to among the finest in the nation. Now in his seventh full season at Clemson, his record of 52-15-2 (.768) is the fourth best winning percentage in college football among active coaches.

In the last four seasons Clemson has a 37-6-2 ledger, the fourth best winning percentage in America. The class of '84 was the third winningest in ACC history in terms of winning percentage, and no ACC class in the 32-year history of the league ever won more games in a four-year period.

Ford has been a part of three ACC championship teams and one national championship team at Clemson. In 1978 he was offensive coordinator for the 11-1 team that won the Gator Bowl over Ohio State, 17-15. The Gadsden, AL native was more than just the offensive coordinator in that game however, as he had become the head coach of the Tigers on December 10 after Charley Pell had already left to go to Florida. The 30-year-old Ford made quite a celebrated beginning to his head coaching career with that victory over the Woody Hayes coached Buckeyes. The nationally televised Clemson victory helped put the Tigers on the national football map and it began Clemson's climb to among the elite of college football.

In 1981 Ford became the youngest coach in the history of the game to win the National Championship. At the age of 33, Ford surprised the college football world by taking the unranked Tigers to three wins over top 10 teams and a perfect 12-0 record. Clemson handed Herschel Walker the only regular-season loss of his Georgia career, downed North Carolina in Chapel Hill in the only showdown of top 10 teams in ACC history, then defeated former champion Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

That obviously is the highmark of Ford's brief, but eventful career at Clemson as he was named national Coach-of-the-Year by UPI, the College Football Writers of America, the Walter Camp Foundation and the Football Coaches of America.

A review of Ford's football past should help us understand why he has been so successful as a head coach. Another in a long line of former Bear Bryant players that have gone on to greatness in coaching, Ford played for the Bear between 1967 and 1969. He was Kenny Stabler's sophomore tight end as a starter in 1967, played that position in 1968 and moved to offensive tackle in 1969. Ford started all three years, was all-conference in 1969 and played on three teams that went to bowl games. In 1969 he was also a member of the All-SEC academic team, and served as the captain of the Alabama team.

After Dye's coaxing, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. He had already earned his B.S. degree in industrial arts and earned his master's degree in special education in 1971. Ford became a full-time aide for Bryant in 1972 and 1973. The Tide went to four bowl games while Ford was an assistant coach.

Clemson's current head man then accepted a position as an assistant coach under Jimmy Sharpe at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-76) before coming to Clemson as offensive line coach in 1977. And, just 23 games later he was named head coach of the Tigers at the age of 30, the youngest active division I coach in the country.

Few people climb to the top five of their profession by the age of 37. Pat Dye gave Danny Ford some sound advice back in 1969 and Clemson fans are glad he took it.

The Ford family: Danny, Ashley, Elizabeth, Jennifer and Debra.

Assistant Coaches

Miles Aldridge is the newest member of the Tiger coaching staff, as he joined Clemson on June 28, 1985. The native of Kansas City, MO will coach the inside linebackers and recruit in the lower part of South Carolina. A 1971 graduate of Gardner Webb College, he is in his 15th year of coaching. He began his collegiate coaching career at East Tennessee State, after which he moved to Wichita State, Tulsa, and then Mississippi. His most recent stint before Clemson was at Duke, where he served as linebacker coach for two seasons.

Lawson Holland was a reserve quarterback for the Tigers from 1970-73, which makes him the only current coach who played Clemson football. In his seventh year, Holland is in charge of receivers and recruiting Virginia, Washington, D.C., and central North Carolina. The Mooresville, N.C., native earned his B.A. in secondary education from Clemson in 1975.

Nelson Stokley has been the Tigers' offensive coordinator for the past five years. He came to Clemson on January 18, 1980 after serving as offensive coordinator for Virginia Tech. The 1968 graduate of LSU was the school's starting quarterback from 1965-67 and then served the fine southern institution as an assistant coach from 1968-75. Stokley still holds many LSU passing records and he was the SEC Sophomore of the Year in 1965.

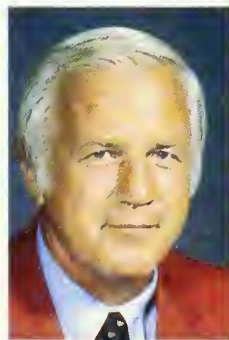

Don Denning is in his fifth season with the Clemson staff. The deep secondary coach and north Georgia recruiter joined the Tigers on July 1, 1981. He has previously served Western Carolina as defensive coordinator and assistant athletic director, Memphis State as assistant head coach, and Delta State University as head coach. Denning graduated from Presbyterian College in 1960 and received a master's degree from Western Carolina in 1969.

Woody McCorvey is in his third year of coaching the tight ends. He came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was the defensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a masters degree in health, leisure and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Larry Van Der Heyden has coached some fine offensive linemen during his six years at Clemson and is a major reason why the Tigers' ground game has been so successful. The offensive line coach joined the staff on January 5, 1979 from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He has also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and masters degrees at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball.

Tom Harper, the Tigers' assistant head coach, came to Clemson from Virginia Tech's coaching staff on Feb. 2, 1981. The native of Piqua, OH served as the defensive coordinator for Virginia Tech, North Carolina, Iowa State and Wake Forest, where he was head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1955 and received his master's degree at the same school in 1958. Nine of his former players have signed pro contracts in the last four years.

Chuck Reedy has coached Clemson's running backs for the last seven years. The St. Augustine, FL., native also recruits for the Tigers in southeast South Carolina, south Georgia and Florida. He earned two letters in football from Appalachian State where he graduated in 1971 with a degree in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1978.

Tommy West coaches the defensive and bandit ends and also recruits middle and south Georgia for the Tigers. He is in his fourth year at Clemson, he came from Appalachian State University on July 10, 1982. The Gainesville, GA, native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball for the Volunteers. A fine all-around athlete, he was drafted out of high school by baseball's Chicago Cubs.

For the sixth time in the last seven years the Clemson all-around sports program has been ranked in the top 15 in the nation. The survey, conducted by the Knoxville Journal, takes into account national rankings in selected sports. Women's sports are not included in this poll, which has been in existence since 1971.

This poll is a good index of Clemson's athletic success in recent years. Clemson first made the top 20 in 1975-76 with a number-20 finish. The Tigers had four top five finishes between 1980 and 1983, one of only two schools in the nation to do that during this time period.

The 1984-85 academic year was another outstanding season for Clemson sports as nine teams were ranked in the top 30 of their respective sports. Five male sports teams and four female sports teams were in the top 30, highlighted by the soccer team's national championship. Three other individuals were lauded as national champions as Richard Matuszewski and Brandon Walters won the NCAA indoor doubles national title, while Tim Krebs won the 1500 meters at the NCAA indoor track meet in Syracuse, NY.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck.) These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
2. Mobile units of EMT's and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interferes with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS

If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and physical exertion. Be certain that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting.

Recognize that our most common serious medical problem at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will continue to always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2999.

IPTAY, in its 52nd year as Clemson's athletic scholarship fund-raising club has continued on its long and successful journey. From a modest beginning in 1934 with only 162 members, IPTAY has grown to include 20,000 loyal Tiger supporters. IPTAY, "I-Pay-Thirty-A-Year," is recognized as the number-one group of its kind in the country.

During the 1984-85 academic year, IPTAY continued to grow and expand with the addition of three features. The IPTAY Athletic Academic Endowment was established during the fall of 1984 for recruiting scholarships for academics. The basic principle behind the endowment is that money donated by matching gift companies is earmarked for a separate scholarship just for academics.

IPTAY also introduced the Tiger Life program in late 1984. With Tiger Life, the Clemson IPTAY Club is the owner and beneficiary of a whole life insurance policy on a participant's life. The contributor makes comparatively small annual gifts for a maximum of eight years. Contributions go directly to Clemson University Tiger Life and all donations to Clemson and IPTAY are, of course, tax deductible. With this program, the member creates a sizable capital asset without impinging on the funds destined for his family. In effect, it creates a $100,000 endowment fund in the contributor's name.

During the past year IPTAY also adopted the Orange and White as the official publication of IPTAY. The Orange and White, which is published weekly from mid-August to March and monthly during April, June and July, began exclusive distribution to 20,000 IPTAY members in early September.

Listed above are just three features that IPTAY has implemented in order to continually attain new heights of success. But, the determining factor that has allowed IPTAY to flourish for over 50 years, is the undying dedication of its members.

The reason is people—people who are committed to a successful program at Clemson University, both on and off the field. Professors, athletes, administrators, managers, trainers, alumni, and friends all play a part in this success. The results which have been produced are something Clemson people can all be proud of in this search for excellence at Clemson University.

The on-going search for excellence in the academic area at Clemson University has resulted in the awarding of the 1984 Fulbright Scholarship for graduates to study overseas to six of six Clemson applicants. In addition, a Guggenheim Scholarship was awarded to another Clemson graduate. Of the 320 valedictorians in South Carolina 120 were accepted to Clemson University. Furthermore, a building program is being instituted on campus that will include a new chemistry building, as well as the expansion of several other departments.

That search for excellence is further exemplified by the efforts of the 20,000 IPTAY members who contributed $118,000 more in 1984 than the year before. These monies enabled over 440 athletes, managers, and trainers to receive scholarship aid to attend Clemson.

These athletes also have the strong commitment to excellence that Clemson supporters both deserve and desire. The Tiger football team has the fourth best four-year record in college football. In December 1984, the soccer team became the school's second national champion by defeating defending champion Indiana. Soccer, men's cross country, women's cross country, men's tennis and women's tennis were all Top 20 teams, while the men's and women's tennis teams were conference champions. Swimming and wrestling enjoyed their best seasons ever. There were 19 All-Americans and 60 all-conference performers competing for Clemson, in addition to six athletes that took part in the Olympics. There is no doubt that Clemson athletics enjoyed one of its best years ever.

IPTAY certainly was a major reason for these accomplishments. But, what is IPTAY other than scholarships? And how has Clemson University benefited from these 51 years of service? The Clemson IPTAY Club has a board of directors led by President Lawrence Starkey, Vice President Jim Patterson, and Secretary-Treasurer Eddie Dalton.

Under the direction of these men, the main purpose of IPTAY continues to be raising monies for athletic scholarships, and thanks to the foresight of athletic department officials and the support of the Board of Directors, many improvements have taken place on campus which are of benefit not only to athletes and fans of athletes, but to the academic area of the University as well.

Specific areas of improvement in recent years include installing lights on Riggs Field; building a new baseball facility (with lights that were added this spring); funding Tiger Band travel; donating over $200,000 to the President's Fund; and developing the East Beach area enjoyed by all Clemson students.

The attitude of Clemson people, especially those associated with IPTAY, is "success is a journey, not a destination." The search for excellence continues at Clemson and, thanks to the continued support of 20,000 IPTAY supporters, the excellence in athletics will continue. As IPTAY continues its service to Clemson, one may only wonder what the future holds.

After 23 consecutive years of record-breaking support, there is no doubt that Clemson will remain number-one.

When you purchase $215,000 worth of office supplies annually, you need to do it in the most cost-effective means possible.

That's the responsibility and challenge facing Russ Conley at South Carolina National Bank.

For every day, across the state, more than 2,300 people depend upon his department for the materials and supplies they need to respond to their growing audience of customers.

Harper Brothers lent a hand through the introduction of Purchasing Management System. A computerized mode of purchasing office supplies that is more time and cost efficient than anything else in the market.

Purchasing Management System gives you precise,

Tough Customers Choose Piedmont.

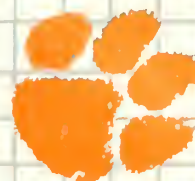

People who take flying seriously complain if an airline isn't performing. So you can imagine how proud Piedmont was last year when, according to Air Transport World magazine, we received fewer complaints than any other major airline.

It's one reason why Air Transport World recently named us, of all the world's airlines, the Airline Of The Year. And a reason why our record against the competition has been so good lately.

WHEN TIMING IS CRITICAL...

LIFE
REACH

As the region's

for patients with cardiovascular disease, Providence Heart Institute in Columbia treats patients from across South Carolina.

And when a heart problem needs immediate attention, our Life Reach helicopter can get a patient to us rapidly and safely.

The helicopter is fully staffed and equipped for critical care — and it can take off within 5 minutes of a call to our Emergency Room. At 150 miles an hour, the Life Reach crew can reach any hospital in South Carolina in under an hour — often in only minutes. On the trip back, the medical team on the helicopter is in communication with doctors at Providence.

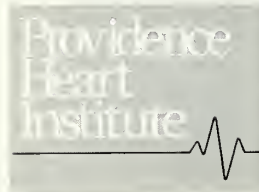

Heart disease touches almost every family in South Carolina. The Providence Heart Institute was created to provide the highest quality services for the diagnosis and treatment of cardiovascular problems, and the Life Reach helicopter is a reflection of our dedication to that goal.

We are committed to offering the most up-to-date diagnostic and therapeutic services...with an expert medical staff...using the very latest techniques and equipment...in the finest facilities. Providence Heart Institute also has a commitment to research into the best methods of treating and preventing cardiovascular disease.

Our state's community hospitals are able to take care of almost any illness you'll ever have. But it's good to know that when specialized cardiovascular services are needed to complement those at primary care facilities, Providence is available. And it's reassuring, too, to have Life Reach Rapid Transport standing by — when timing is critical.

When CBS Comes to Town

By Jill Mixon

September 21, 1985. Approximately five million people across the United States tuned in the Clemson-Georgia contest. It marked the first national television appearance for the Tigers since the Clemson-Georgia confrontation between the hedges in 1982, and the first time a national TV game had been aired from Death Valley, ever!

And the viewers were not disappointed. Heading into the fourth quarter the Tigers held a 10-3 lead, but the Dawgs took advantage of 17 final-period points to defeat the Tigers 20-13.

CBS officials licked their chops as the cat and dog fight drew to a close. They had a truly exciting ballgame on their hands. And, Americans inched closer to their sets as the Dawgs fumbled on the Tiger's 38-yard-line. Trailing by seven points with 1:42 remaining on the clock, quarterback Randy Anderson completed two quick passes to march the Tigers to the Georgia 36. Unfortunately for the Tiger contingent Anderson was intercepted in the endzone on the next play and Georgia took over at their own 20 with less than a minute to play.

With the outcome of the game decided, many Americans turned their attention to other matters, unknowing what had been involved in the three-hour broadcast they had just witnessed.

"In early May, CBS established which games would be televised nationally like the Clemson-Georgia, Ohio State-Michigan, and Army-Navy games," said Ric LaCivita, CBS Sports Senior Producer for college football. "We make that decision early so that CBS can sell the national advertising necessary to pay for the telecasts. Other games, like regionally televised contests, can be picked as late as 12 days prior to the game."

The real production work for the telecast began as early as mid-July when LaCivita and Technical Director Joe Dornellas paid a visit to Tigertown. "We came down in July to survey the stadium, scout out possible camera locations, and meet with the Clemson people with whom we would be working."

The survey of the stadium constitutes the heart of the logistics or mechanics of the broadcast. "Logistics have to do with how many and where to place the cameras, where to park the trucks, where the power is, whether or not there will be a need to bring in lights, and even where the crew will be housed," said LaCivita. "Essentially logistics is basic detail work in my business. You have to look at the sight and ask yourself 'do I want to add or subtract from the normal complement of cameras and equipment?'"

"Because Clemson has a unique atmosphere, we added a third hand-held camera that roamed around the inside and outside of the stadium. That enabled us to get shots of the Rock, the Tigers running down the Hill, and to capture the intense rivalry between the fans."

"A key in this business is communication, and in order to keep in touch with all our people, we had to install our own telephone system in the stadium and to the outside world. It was also necessary to install an audio and video signal out of Clemson back to New York. Our signal was then intertwined into the CBS television network and commercials were added back in New York."

Once the logistics and mechanics were ironed out, LaCivita then began to worry about storyline and the creative aspects of the show. The heart and soul of this segment is how to utilize the story of the game and present it in a creative manner.

"Everybody has a different look, different touch, a different creative point of view. Ours at CBS was to try and pick up the color, background, and ambiance of the rivalry. Since this game has been such a close contest over the past few years, what we tried to convey to the viewers was the intensity of the rivalry."

"In order to achieve this, we put Brent Musberger in front of the Rock to talk about Death Valley and what this contest has come to mean to the two schools. We tried to provide an opening that you could find only at Clemson."

"But, we would not be able to pull any of this off if it wasn't for the hard work of our crew. We brought 35 technicians, 12 production assistants, and six telephone people with us from New York. We then hired 10 runners from Clemson to bring our game crew to 63. It took 40 members of the actual work crew 1,600 man hours to set up and disassemble the Clemson remote. This work began early Thursday morning and ended late Saturday night."

As the producer, LaCivita's game-week preparation began on Tuesday when he and Brent Musberger flew to Athens to collect background information on Georgia. On Wednesday Brent flew back to New York, and LaCivita drove to Clemson to begin the real work for the telecast.

Wednesday and Thursday afternoons were spent out at practice with Coach Ford and the sports information staff. Ara Parseghian also arrived on Thursday to become familiar with the Clemson atmosphere.

When the long awaited kickoff time finally arrived on Saturday afternoon, LaCivita's production tasks were greatly intensified. "As producer my responsibilities are multifaceted. Overall I am responsible for the telecast for CBS Sports. Although they are delegated, every decision eventually comes back to me. I am responsible for forming the show, deciding what we will do in the broadcast, and how the time will be utilized. In addition I am in charge of selecting replays and player or coach isolations. I cue the announcers when to switch the storyline from one team to the other. Why is Team A beating Team B? What is our story? Who is the key for Team A? Team B? These are just a few of the decisions that I make."

"Realistically, I do not make every single decision during the telecast, but I am held accountable for each one made. During the course of a three-hour telecast the producer and director will jointly make between 300-400 decisions. Whereas, the chief executive officer of a major corporation normally makes only 75-100 decisions in a year. You have to live and die by the split-second decision."

So, as you can see, while the Tigers were under pressure to come back in the final minutes against Georgia, there was a crew of about 60 workers under pressure to bring you the true story of the final minutes. Clemson's quarterback on the field was Randy Anderson, CBS had a quarterback in a truck and his name was Ric LaCivita.

Brent Musberger and Ara Parseghian are just two of over 60 people involved in putting a CBS telecast on the air.

THE ENEMY: POTHOLE

Cracks, sudden bumps and cavernous potholes exact a terrible toll from tires.

But the Goodyear Vector is engineered to help meet the challenges of today's roads.

Its backbone of belted steel helps resist the punishment of torn-up roads. While its aggressive criss-cross tread helps prevent hydroplaning and gives you excellent traction on snow, slush or ice.

The unique all-season Goodyear Vector. The next best thing to having every road freshly paved.

Vector  It simply performs like no other tire in the world.

University Feature

By Margaret Lamb

On Friday, Nov. 8, ground was broken for the Strom Thurmond Institute of Government and Public Affairs, marking not only the start of construction, but also the completion of a successful $5.5 million fund-raising drive.

Vice President George Bush spoke at the ceremonies, which were attended by 4,000 people, including legislators, Thurmond's congressional colleagues and alumni and friends of the university.

The day not only honored Thurmond and his family but represented a milestone in the history of Clemson University and its public service mission to the state of South Carolina. When it is completed, the institute will be a hub of learning for the state, region and nation.

For many people whose lives already have been touched by the Thurmond Institute — the Thurmond scholars, Clemson faculty, public officials, high school teachers, the distinguished lecturers, the Strom Thurmond fellows, ground was broken three years ago when plans for the Strom Thurmond Center for Excellence and Public Service were announced.

In October 1981 Sen. Strom Thurmond announced his decision to put his public papers and memorabilia at Clemson University, his alma mater. The gift became the cornerstone of The Strom Thurmond Center for Excellence in Government and Public Service. The institute, a non-partisan, non-profit, tax-exempt organization affiliated with Clemson, is the main component.

The 50,000-square foot facility will exist to further Thurmond's goals of helping create better government for all Americans. Through its many research, educational and public service programs, the institute seeks to increase informed citizen participation in government.

For the past three years, the Strom Thurmond Institute has offered six programs:

The Thurmond Seminars in Government and Politics bring secondary social science teachers from around the state to the Clemson campus and Washington, D.C., for discussions on public policy with key figures in the public and private sectors.

The Strom and Nancy Thurmond High School Achievement Program brings a select group of high school sophomores and juniors to the Clemson campus each summer for a special orientation to college life and careers in public service.

The Thurmond Scholars Program annually awards full scholarships to four academically exceptional freshmen entering Clemson University.

The Distinguished Lecturers Program brings to the Clemson campus public officials, business leaders, journalists and other opinion makers to teach, do research, and hold discussions with faculty and students. Members of the program include Guenther van Well, West German ambassador to the United States; Ike Pappas, CBS news correspondent; Lee Atwater, President Reagan's former deputy assistant for political affairs; and James Ferguson, chairman of General Foods.

The Lecture Series features leading national and international policy and opinion makers. Members of Congress, columnists and foreign dignitaries have given lectures and participated in seminars and panel discussions on such topics as El Salvador and nuclear disarmament.

The Governmental Research Program focuses on specific problems and offers practical solutions. Major research efforts include studies on volunteerism in the United States, the NATO alliance and the feasibility of turning over some government services to the private sector. The institute recently had a $250,000 grant renewed by the S.C. Water Resources Commission to study the state's water supply.

In addition to its programs, the institute also publishes working papers resulting from the roundtable discussions, seminars and lectures in an effort to keep the public informed on important issues.

It also publishes the "Review of Regional Studies," a collection of scholarly writings from the fields of economics, geography, political science, and planning, in cooperation with the Southern Regional Science Association.

When completed, the institute will be much more than an impressive monument to a distinguished public servant or a store-house for Thurmond's papers; it will be a lasting home for vital programs of research, teaching and public service.

Mrs. Nancy Thurmond views Thurmond memorabilia on display in the Cooper Library.

HERE'S HOW TO BUILD THE COST-MANAGED, EMPLOYEE-SATISFYING BENEFITS PROGRAM.

Competition is growing more fierce than ever before, everywhere.

You can find competition within your own company. A battle is raging right now between managing costs and building an employee compensation program that attracts and keeps valuable employees.

FROM THE SINGLE SOURCE

Now, for the first time, you can build an affordable, cost-managed compensation program for your company using the most innovative insurance and financial products available today—all from one source, the single source, Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Companion.

THE CHOICES

Starting with health benefits, choose from cost management plans; Preferred Personal Care, our preferred provider organization or Companion HealthCare, our health maintenance organization.

Companion companies offer group, supplemental and dependent life, disability coverage, pensions, annuities and workers compensation. Add payroll deduction plans like individual homeowners, automobile and universal life.

Service-only options include third party claims administration, cost management and employee wellness programs.

TOTAL EMPLOYEE FLEXIBILITY

With our flexible compensation plan, employees receive the added benefit of choice that allows them to build a plan that best meets their needs. You benefit from affordable, managed compensation costs and employee satisfaction.

THE ONLY SOURCE YOU'LL EVER NEED

To be truly competitive, you need a compensation program that offers flexibility, cost-managed benefits and employee satisfaction. You need the Single Source, Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Companion. For information on any of our products, contact your independent agent or the Blue Cross Marketing Division at 803-788-3860.

The Golden Knights

By Jeff Rhodes

The air will be filled with more than footballs and falling leaves today as the US Army Parachute Team, the Golden Knights, will "hit the spot" in pregame ceremonies. This group of specially-trained jumpers competes in national and international parachute events and helps develop new parachuting techniques and equipment. These soldiers represent the elite of the Army's Airborne troops and they will deliver today's game ball like it never has been delivered at Clemson before.

Having performed close to 4,000 demonstrations since the group's founding in 1959, the Golden Knights are recognized as one of the world's finest precision parachute teams. This collection of aerial artists has claimed 48 American and six world parachuting titles in an eventful 26-year history.

The typical Golden Knight show begins at 13,500 feet where the jumpers singly, or in groups, leap from the team's orange and white (honest!) de Havilland-Canada C-7A Caribou. Recognizable only by the smoke wafting from a canister attached to a jump boot, the paratrooper free-falls and quickly accelerates to speeds of 200 miles per hour.

Then the show begins. Three maneuvers that are favorites with the crowds, the Baton Pass, the Formation Flight, and the Diamond Track, occur before the jumpers deploy their parachutes. During the Baton Pass, two members free-fall and then come together and grasp hands for 60 seconds. At the end of the minute, one jumper, just like a relay race, passes the baton to his partner. The two jumpers separate at 3,000 feet and then land.

In the other free-fall segment, four jumpers come together in the shape of a diamond, separated by just inches. At the 3,000-foot plateau, the quartet splits apart, and the Knights head in different directions before touching down.

The final parachute-less exercise, the Diamond Track, involves two jumpers free-falling as far away from each other as possible. Once at the point of maximum separation, the two soldiers steer back toward each other by hand and body movements and cross paths before pulling the ripcord.

The Cutaway involves both free-fall and parachute manipulation. The jumper falls to 3,000 feet where he deploys the first main canopy. With an attitude that seems devil-may-care, the Airborne troop cuts away the perfectly good parachute, free-falls again and then opens the spare and "hits the silk" for landing.

Many operations in this ballet of the sky, though, take place after the 'chutes are opened. After popping the canopy at 2,000 feet, the jumpers will stack on top of one another, fly a side-by-side formation, and soar down in a staggered biplane or triplane arrangement and land softly on the target. Quite logically, the Tiger Paw in the middle of the field will be the aiming point of today's show.

The Golden Knights are able to "fly" their parachutes because of its rectangular design called a ram-air or "square" canopy. Unlike the round umbrella-shaped parachutes used by the Army at Normandy or Arnhem in World War II, the ram-air canopy is highly maneuverable due to its wing-like cross section. The air is forced in the front and let out the back as the jumper controls the flight by steering lines held in the hands. These 'chutes have an inherent forward speed of 22 miles per hour.

The Golden Knights are the Army's official parachute demonstration unit and are based at Fort Bragg, near Fayetteville, NC. The team is divided into two demonstration teams, two competition teams, a headquarters section, and the aviation section which flies and maintains the Golden Knights' three C-7A Caribous and two Beech U-21 King Air utility planes.

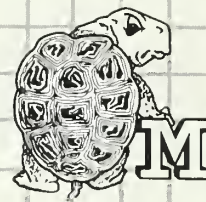

The team has performed in all 50 states and in 31 foreign countries over the course of its history. The individual team members are selected not only for their parachute skills, but also for their ability to be a goodwill ambassador for the Army and the United States. The average jumper is 26-years-old and has made over 1,200 one-way trips by way of a parachute.

The C-7 Caribou aircraft flown by members of the aviation section are the same average age as the jumpers and are exquisitely maintained. The twin-engine Caribou was chosen by the Knights for its large, hinged, cargo ramp door and because the plane is a very stable jump platform. This type aircraft first achieved notoriety in the Vietnam Conflict as a STOL (Short Take-Off and Landing) cargo aircraft with the Army, the Air Force, and with Air America, the CIA-run airline, at forward bases. The pilots of these jump planes average over 5,000 flight hours per man and the ground crew rounds out with over 12 years of experience per man in taking care of the mechanical functions.

While the Golden Knights may have found a new and exciting way to beat the traffic into the stadium for today's contest, they will still have to hoof it out like the rest of us earth-bound people when they leave. Oh well, you can't have everything.

Senior Spotlights

By Tim Match

Mark Vaughan is a senior walk-on who has been with the Tigers for two seasons. The native of nearby Pelzer has been a punter and a defensive back during his Clemson career, but has never appeared in a varsity game. He has been a consistent worker at practice providing backup strength at the punting position. He has been the second or third string punter during this season.

A fine athlete at Palmetto High School, he lettered 10 times during his prep career, including five times in golf. He lettered two seasons on the gridiron and was fourth in the state in punting as a junior. His senior year he was MVP of the basketball team and an honorable mention all-state basketball player. He was the team's medalist as a junior in golf. He should earn his degree in accounting this spring.

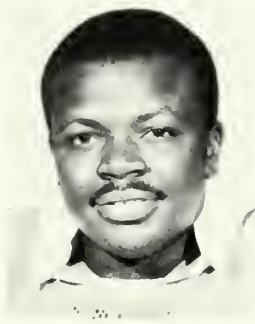

Adubarie Otorubio has continued the tradition of former Clemson soccer players who have joined the Tiger football team. Repeatedly, Danny Ford has said he wishes Otorubio had a couple of years of eligibility remaining, but this is his first and only season with the Clemson football team. This season he has handled the kickoff chores for the Tigers and through nine games only 14 of his 36 kickoffs had been returned.

Otorubio is the only three-year All-American in Clemson soccer history and he is widely regarded as the school's top defender of all time. During his career he was a four-time All-ACC choice, a two-time MVP of the Clemson Invitational, Most Valuable Player of the 1982 and 1984 teams and in general the top defender in the nation in 1984 when he led Clemson to the national championship. Otorubio hopes to pursue a career in civil engineering after he graduates in December.

Glen Brickley came to Clemson as a junior college transfer from Les-McKrae Junior College in North Carolina. After red-shirting the 1983 season, Brickley served the Tiger offensive line as a reserve and scout team member the last two seasons. He was the third-team center heading into this season. As a prepster, Brickley played football at Saluda High School under the direction of Joe Steadman. He was a standout for Les-McKrae for two seasons prior to coming to Clemson. The Greenville native had a 3.06 GPA last year and he intends to pursue a career in industrial education field.

Eric Dawson, an Anderson, SC native, has been a reliable backup defensive end this year. He has seen action in seven of the nine games so far and has been a needed addition with all the injuries at the defensive end position this year. When Danny Ford speaks of players who have had to come through for Clemson and play better than they are capable of, Dawson is one of the players he is talking about. Dawson has averaged 11 plays a game and two tackles a contest this year. Over half his tackles have been first hits. He recorded a career high four tackles in the Kentucky game and also registered his first career sack.

Dawson attended Westside High School and graduated in 1981. As a prepster, Eric received eight varsity letters while participating in football, basketball and track. He is looking to pursue a career in administrative management.

Mike Isaacs has been of tremendous value to the Tigers over the last few seasons, but injuries have limited his playing time recently. This year a head injury has forced him to miss half the season. Through four contests he was playing his best football since coming to Clemson as the strong safety had registered 18 tackles and a deflected pass. He had averaged 23 plays and 4.5 tackles a game prior to the injury in the Kentucky game.

Due to a chronic viral infection, Isaacs missed the entire spring of last year, but he bounced back ready for this season. He walked-on the Clemson team as a freshman and so impressed the coaching staff that he earned a scholarship for the rest of his career. He started two games and played in seven others during the 1984 season. The native of Pickens played for his father at Pickens High School and he is regarded as one of the faster players on the team. He is capable of running a 4.55 in the 40. Isaacs is a science major hoping to find a career in the education area.

This Day in Tiger Football

By Sammy Blackman

Conference Championships are decided, last home games are played with bowl participation at stake. These are some of the characteristics of games that are played in the middle of November. With the weather noticeably cooler, and the leaves showing their colorful splendor, it makes for a perfect atmosphere for a collegiate game. These are some of the ingredients that have gone into making November 16 a special day in Tiger Football.

1912—Clemson defeated Mercer 21-13 on this date 73 years ago. Clare Webb scored two touchdowns from short yardage while Marion (Pony) Coles galloped 50 yards to lead the Tigers to victory at Macon, Georgia.

1916—The Citadel-Clemson game this year was an affair of lost opportunities as The Citadel had a chance to attempt five field goals while only making one. Clemson on the other hand had several opportunities to score but could not capitalize. Five-thousand witnessed the Bulldogs' Johnnie Weeks kick the game's lone score with a field goal from 23 yards out that went over the crossbar by only a few feet in the third quarter. It proved to be the winning margin in The Citadel's 3-0 win.

1918—The University of South Carolina athletic authorities provided the use of their stadium to Clemson and The Citadel for their annual game, as the State Fair in Orangeburg forced the game out of that city. Luckily, South Carolina was playing at Furman that day and the field was not going to be used by the Gamecocks. Another reason the game was played at Columbia instead of Charleston or Clemson was that the military officials from both Clemson and The Citadel would not allow players to be absent from any military duties due to athletic events. Since the game was played in Columbia both the Clemson and Citadel cadets and football teams would be able to make the trip to Columbia and return to duty, while if the game was played at The Citadel or Clemson, one or the other would be late in reporting back to school. Clemson's John O'Dell scored for the game's only tally as Clemson won the game, 7-0. Both teams made it back to their campuses before their passes expired.

1929—Recent Clemson Hall of Fame Inductee Goat McMillan fired six passes in the Tigers scoring drive with one a touchdown pass to right end Bob Jones in the Tigers only score in a losing effort to Florida. The Gators prevailed 13-7 in this Southern Conference matchup. A feature attraction at Clemson was at the junior varsity contest. Athletic director Mutt Gee arranged for play by play reports of the varsity game to be announced at the JV game between Clemson and The Citadel. One dollar admission was charged to hear the account of the Florida-Clemson game and watch the junior varsity game on Riggs Field.

1935—Interest in the Clemson and The Citadel game reached a new high at Clemson and, according to an announcement from the commandant's office, approximately 300 Clemson cadets wanted to attend the game. Seeking means of transportation the cadets offered to share traveling expenses with anyone owning an auto and desiring to go to Charleston. People interested were asked to contact the Clemson commandant's office. These cadets, along with 3,000 others, watched Streak Lawton score from 10 yards out to give the Tiger a hard-fought 6-0 win. Clemson gained 342 yards total offense to The Citadel's 77.

1946—Clemson defeated Furman 20-6 before a homecoming crowd of 18,000 people. Clemson's Dewey Quinn scored on a one-yard run while Chip Clark scored on a 43-yard pass from Hal Leonard. The Tiger's Billy Poe scored the last Clemson touchdown when he received a lateral toss from Dick Hendley on a play that covered 29 yards. An innovation was tried in numbering of the gridiron lines for the spectators. The large numerals were not marked off in chalk, but were planted in bright green rye grass.

1956—Vice President Richard Nixon was in attendance at the Clemson-Miami football game on this date 29 years ago. Surrounded by security from various agencies, a loud explosion sounded and alarmed the body guards along with the Vice President. To everyone's relief, it was discovered that it was just the cannon fired off by a Clemson cheerleader when Clemson kicked off. The eighth-ranked Hurricanes defeated the Tigers 21-0 in the game played in Miami.

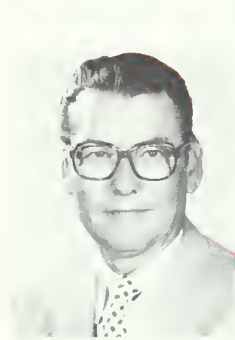

1974—Craig Brantley caught touchdown passes of 55 and 97 yards in Clemson's 28-9 victory over Virginia. Mark Fellers who threw the aerials scored from 13 yards out to cap the Tigers win over the Cavaliers.

Also on this date, the playing surface of Memorial Stadium was named after Frank Howard for his 44 years of service to the university.

Craig Brantley caught two TD passes in the 1974 win over Virginia.

Sometimes, service means more than fixing a power line.

Greg Coats, SCE&G Lineman

That's the kind of service most people expect from us. But that's not all we do. Our Summer Foundation provides assistance for organizations which aid people in need. Programs like the Baptist Medical Center Foundation and the Foundation for the Multihandicapped, Blind and Deaf of South Carolina, whose helping hands reach a lot of people.

If you know of an organization that could use our help, drop us a line. We'd like to be of service.

LIFE

For the past 51 years thousands of you have displayed your unsurpassed loyalty to Clemson by making IPTAY one of the greatest athletic scholarship groups in America.

Now there are some people who want to make another unique effort for Clemson by providing an endowment to assure the future security and success of the Clemson Athletic Department.

Tiger Life is a program through which you make an affordable investment over an eight-year period to insure a sizable future gift to the Clemson Athletic Department.

Listed below are a few individuals who with a few others who wish to remain anonymous have arranged for gifts in excess of $2,000,000 to Clemson Athletic Department Endowment.

Satisfaction Guaranteed Or Your Money Back

Whatever you buy at Sears, you have the right to use it for a reasonable time before you determine it is satisfactory and decide to keep it. If you decide it is not satisfactory, return it to us at our expense. We will do whatever is necessary to correct the cause of your dissatisfaction.

If we can't satisfactorily provide a remedy, or if you request a refund, we will refund your full purchase price including any appropriate delivery charges, finance charges and applicable taxes.

Sears Pledge of Fairness

If, after you have decided to keep your purchase, it doesn't give you the service or performance you reasonably expect of it and there isn't a specific written warranty on the item that will satisfactorily correct the problem, please let us know.

We want to make an adjustment that you will consider fair.

You Can Count On Sears

You can count on Sears for satisfaction

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money back is a promise Sears has lived by for half a century. Other things you can still count on at Sears: fair prices, good workmanship, wide selection, competent service.

You pay good money at Sears. In return, Sears believes that you should be completely satisfied with everything you buy.

You must be satisfied with performance, quality of workmanship, fit, styling—even color. Suppose you buy a blue sweater through the catalog and the blue strikes you as different, however slightly, from the blue on the printed page.

Says Sears catalog: "In such a case, as with everything we sell, we guarantee your satisfaction or your money back."

Sears goes to extraordinary lengths to make certain that you will be satisfied. For instance:

1. Men and women from Sears spend thousands of hours a year at factories that make Sears products.

These men and women are called buyers, but they do a lot more than place orders. They study the needs and desires of Sears customers—and work personally with manufacturers to make certain that Sears products perform as expected.

2. The Sears Laboratory tests over 10,000 products a year.

Sears maintains one of the world's largest private laboratories for testing consumer goods. It tests for strength, durability, handling, and performance.

3. Sears employs engineers to help manufacturers improve their efficiency.

This is one of many steps Sears takes to help hold down costs. Others include an almost fanatically efficient distribution system.

Example: Refrigerator door handles are left off refrigerators for shipment to Sears stores. With door handles tucked neatly into cartons instead of sticking out, each carton can be a little smaller, Sears can get more refrigerators on each truck—and the shipping cost for each refrigerator goes down a few cents.

Dozens of small efficiencies like this explain why Sears regular prices are so reasonable, and Sears sale prices such terrific bargains.

So it's first to Sears for millions of shoppers—more than shop at any other store. These millions have found again and again that they are likely to spot exactly what they're looking for at Sears, to pay a fair price for it—and to be completely satisfied with it once they get it home.

There's more for your life at SEARS

◀ Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back has been firm Sears policy for over half a century. The words on this plaque stand behind every purchase by every Sears customer.

You can use Marvess® Olefin yarn for more fabrics than you thought... for less money than you think.

As the most extensive product line in terms of colors and deniers, Phillips Marvess olefin multifilament yarn sets the standard for the upholstery industry. But this technically superior yarn also has a wide variety of other fabric applications.

Fabrics for window curtains, shower curtains, drapes, mattress ticking, indoor/outdoor furniture covering, bedspreads. The list goes on and on.

So do the benefits of using this strong, yet lightweight yarn. For example, Marvess olefin has the lowest specific gravity of any fiber, which reduces the number of ends and picks needed per square inch. Thus it produces more yards per pound of fabric. And that means big savings to you.

Our non-allergenic, fade-resistant yarn also has extremely low moisture absorption, so less energy is required in the drying process — which means additional savings. And because of its high strength, wet or dry, fabrics don't need to be overconstructed.

Last, but certainly not least, Phillips Fibers has the largest plant capacity in the U.S. devoted exclusively to producing textile olefin filament yarns for the home furnishings industry. And the price is competitive, but then, that's what you'd expect from one of the performance companies.

For more information and service that's second to none, contact Olefin Fibers Marketing, Phillips Fibers Corporation, P.O. Box 66, Greenville, SC 29602. Call: 803/242-6600.

The Evolution of the Football Player

By Sam Blackman

Over the years, when comparing team's chances one good measuring stick has been the weight and height of the players on the two teams. Even today, one of the first items that coaches and fans look at on the roster is the size of the players. If one was to go back and look at players' sizes in the years gone by one would find that today's players dwarf the men that played in yesteryear. Yesterday's larger football players height and weight would be the smallest on many of today's football rosters.

There are many contributing factors why athletes have increased their size and weight. They include better nutrition, increased time in weight training, people are more health conscious, and people are genetically larger. Although there are many reasons why football players are bigger, a time cannot be pinpointed as the actual period that football players have increased in size.

A major contributing factor is weight training. Weight training is a growing phenomenon in college athletics. American colleges and universities are spending thousands of dollars on weight training equipment to help improve the performance and size of the athletes, which in turn, increases the success of the team. Few coaches or athletes deny that physical conditioning plays an important role in almost any sporting event.

Almost all NCAA division I schools hire coaches to supervise their weight programs. Strength coaches differ in their definition of a successful strength program. Various measures of success include a reduction in a team's injuries; an increase in a player's size and strength; a spacious and well-equipped strength room, and of course, a winning football program. Strength and conditioning regimens during the off-season are rapidly becoming as important to a successful sports program as the playbook is during the season.

Although weight training is vital to a successful football team it is a relatively new aspect of college athletics. Most colleges and universities started a weight training program in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Although players have gotten larger over the years, weight training is only one of the reasons responsible for the surge in players' sizes. "Genetically, people have gotten bigger," commented Clemson's Strength Coach Gary Wade. "Weight training has helped people get bigger in the right way. Instead of having big people, athletes that train the proper way, are not only big but stronger, faster and more flexible. Weight training can turn a tall, lean person into one with more size and power."

In the ACC, individual body weights of each team's starting offensive linemen were obtained five years prior to the start of an organized weight training program and taken five years after the program was initiated at each school. The average weight was 233.14 before weight training was started at each school. The average weight of the offensive linemen following the program was 249.14 pounds, which indicates a difference of 16 pounds.

In a study done by Olson and Hunter in 1984, significant differences were found in players' body weights in just a 10-year-span. A survey of 45 Division I schools showed that weight training helped people receive more body mass, yet play effectively at a higher weight. Comparing the 1973-74 football players at these schools with the 1983-84 players, it was found that all of the players in the latter group weighed 20 pounds more and were one inch taller.

Average Weight of Clemson starting offensive teams over the years

Year	Weight	Year	Weight
1905	182	1955	196
1915	166	1965	210
1925	169	1975	219
1935	182	1985	229
1945	183

The time an athlete starts weight training and the supervision he receives is important in the area of gaining body size. "One reason athletes are larger is because of good, sound strength programs," says Clemson's Head Trainer Fred Hoover. "Athletes are starting exercise programs earlier that are designed and supervised on the high school level. A great deal of research in sports medicine is giving the coaches at the high school level valuable information, which in turn will help athletes benefit from strength, running and flexibility programs.

Public concern for better health and nutrition along with parental involvement are points that cannot be ruled out for reasons why football players have become larger over the years. "Part of the reason football players have become larger is a reflection of better diet and conditioning. There is not one factor that explains why people are bigger," commented Dr. Roland Knight, orthopedic surgeon from Greenville, SC. "Public awareness has increased concerning good nutrition and proper diet. This along with weight training, participation in sports at an earlier age and parental concerns are some reasons why athletes are larger."

The average lineman in NCAA Division I is 73 pounds and three and a half inches taller than he was in 1900. In 1900 an average lineman weighed 195 pounds and stood 6'1". In 1984, the average lineman weighs 268 pounds and has a height of 6'5". In the year 2000, it is projected that the typical lineman will weigh 300 pounds and will be 6'7".

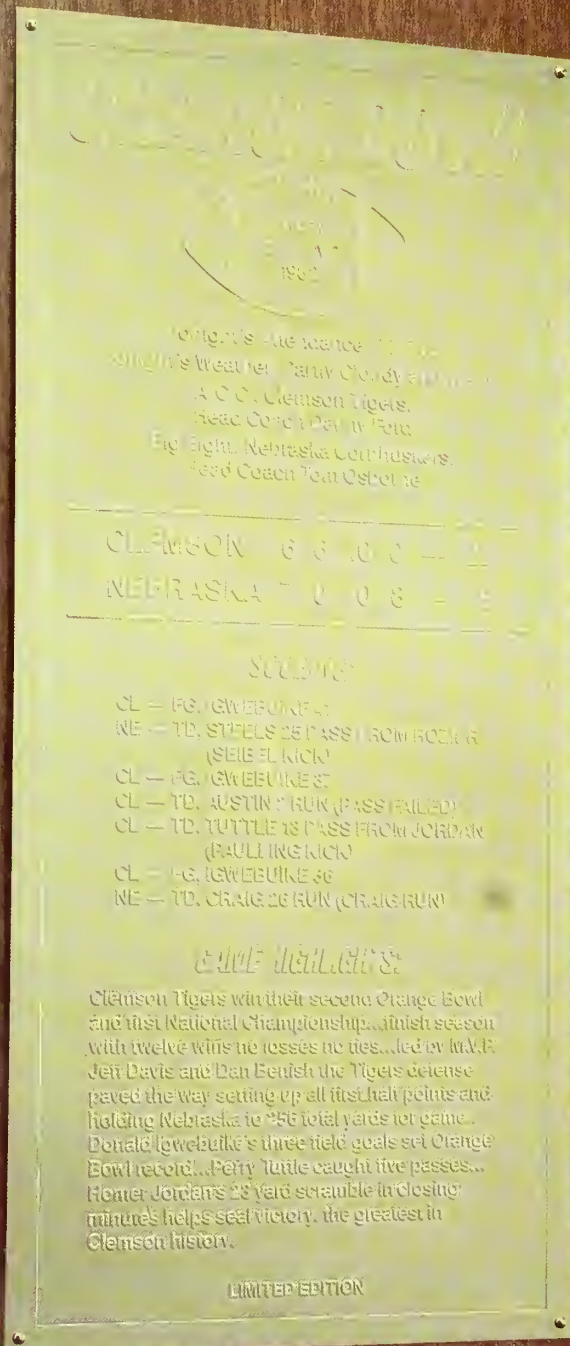

Although player's sizes have increased over the years, not to mention the names, rules and equipment, one thing is for certain: the excitement, drama, and entertainment that collegiate football provides fans across the nation will never change whether the players are small, large or GIANTS.

Terence Mack is a 230-pound defensive end. He is 40 pounds heavier than the average Clemson lineman of 40 years ago.

Today's Band Feature

By David Webb

Another season of Tiger home appearances ends today. Although the calendar must witness the passing of nine more months before the Orange and White return to Death Valley, memories of the 1985 season will remain, indelible as the darkest of hues. Today, many Tigers — players, band members, fans — make their grand finales as Clemson students. Today is their day and the day of those that brought them forth, as Parents' Day is celebrated with all the revelries of a Clemson football Saturday.

Those revelries will start on the field when Tiger Band begins its traditional pregame show. "Sock It To 'Em," and the Orange Bowl March, should raise spirits and the always uplifting "Tiger Rag" should bring them to a frenzy as Tiger Band spells out the word "Tigers."

Today's guest of honor dotting the "i" in Tigers is Tiger Brotherhood's Mother-of-the-Year, Ms. Anne P. Collins. A resident of Chester, Ms. Collins married a Clemson graduate and had two sons who earned their degrees here. Ms. Collins is active in her church and in other civic affairs, and she served as a historian when the mini-series Chiefs was filmed in Chester.

Joining Ms. Collins to dot the "i" will be 1985-86 Tiger Band Commander James Summer. Summer, a senior from Little Mountain, S. C., will be representing the seniors of Tiger Band, who will be introduced during the pregame show.

The pregame show continues with Dr. Richard E. Goodstein conducting Tiger Band in "You're A Grand Ole Flag" and "America The Beautiful." The Clemson University Chorus will accompany the band as they play those numbers. Dr. Bruce F. Cook will then direct the band in our national anthem, and William W. Campbell will direct the Clemson University Alma Mater. The Reverend Jeff Clayton of Fort Hill Presbyterian Church will offer the invocation; the colors will be presented by an ensemble from Pershing Rifles, Company C-4, Kerry Graham, Color Guard Commander. The pregame show will end from towering heights when the Golden Knights aka the U. S. Army 82nd Airborne Division, will parachute in with the game ball. The game will be ready to start when those Fightin' Tigers get ready to battle the Terps by roaring down The Hill to the ecstasy of Tiger Rag.

Today's halftime show, "A Tribute To The Graduating Seniors," will commence with "The Right Stuff," composed for the movie of the same name by Bill Conti and arranged by Jay Bocock. Trumpet soloists Phil Kealer and Doug Martin will be featured in the next piece, "The Elks' Parade."

This song, a big-band standard, was arranged by Paul Lavendar and arranged for percussion by Barry Reese, "Rise Again," a popular gospel selection composed by Dallas Holme, will feature French horn player Gail Holland, Baritone soloist John Smith, and trumpeters Jamie Schuman and Gordon Moore. Jay Bocock and Barry Reese teamed up for the arrangement of this song. A tribute to all Tigers — no matter what their position, size, age, or location will end today's halftime show as Tiger Band plays for one more time "The Song That Shakes The Southland, "TIGER RAG"!!!!

This week, Tiger Band would like to honor its graduating seniors. This group of dedicated musicians has stood by the Tigers through good times and bad, mostly good. Dr. Bruce Cook, director of Tiger Band, said, "Senior leadership in this band has been the key to its great success. Their presence will be felt long after their

The Last Word

By Bob Bradley

Today's opponent, Maryland, has one claim against Clemson that no other Atlantic Coast Conference team can equal — the Terps own more victories than losses over the Tigers in Memorial Stadium.

Although Clemson has narrowed the gap somewhat by grabbing the last two victories in "The Valley," Maryland still owns a 9-7-0 edge on the Tigers in their own backyard.

Clemson and Maryland got on each other's list in 1952, a year before the ACC was formed. The late Jim Tatum already brought the Terps a national power and he beat his "ole buddy" Frank Howard the first four tries, although the Tigers did throw a scare into the Terp bowl plans in 1955.

Howard and Tatum were the closest of friends, but they would trade friendly jabs at each other during the summer in order to sell tickets and then walk off the field after the game arm and arm ready to split the gate.

After the third-ranked Terps slapped the Tigers around, 28-0, in 1952 at College Park, Maryland made its first trip to Clemson a year later and tacked on a 20-0 win. Tatum was named ACC Coach-of-the-Year and his quarterback, Bernie Faloney, was Player-of-the-Year.

When Tatum and Faloney flew down to attend the Greenville Touchdown Jamboree and receive their awards, Howard went out to the airport to meet them. Howard told Faloney, "Son, I'm mighty glad to see what you look like in the face. All I ever saw was the back of you running toward our goal line."

The Tigers absorbed their third straight shutout (16-0) in 1954 at College Park and in 1955, Tatum brought what was to be his last Maryland team to Clemson and the Terps had one of their best teams. Back then the ACC and the Big 8 champions were automatic qualifiers for the Orange Bowl and the winner of the Terp-Tiger clash would have the "honor" of meeting Oklahoma in Miami January 1st.

Memorial Stadium held only 20,000 at the time, but every available portable bleacher was brought in and ole "Death Valley" popped at the seams with 30,000 people.

Clemson got on the board early when Don King passed to Dalton Rivers for a 12-yard tally and tailback Joel Wells electrified the crowd as he slipped through the right side of his line and ripped off a 50-yard touchdown run. Both extra points were missed, but at this point, the largest home crowd in history was delirious — and thinking of a vacation in Miami in January.

Howard must have felt pretty confident also. When Clemson jumped ahead 12-0, he gave one of his managers money to go downtown to the grocery store (where the Student Book Exchange is now located) to buy a dozen lemons which he was going to give Tatum after the game.

However, Howard will admit today that he made one of his biggest coaching mistakes that day by letting his first team stay in too long without relief. Weariness set in during the second half and Maryland went on to a 25-12 victory.

Oklahoma defeated Maryland, 20-6, in the Orange Bowl. The Sooners took the opening kickoff, did not huddle a single time on the first drive and went in to score.

Tommy Mont took over at Maryland after Tatum left to return to his alma mater, North Carolina, and Clemson managed two wins and a tie against Mont.

And then the dapper Tom Nugent took over the Terps and brought with him the true "I" formation which had three backs lined up directly behind the quarterback. Howard and Nugent got into an honest-to-goodness feud.

Maryland played at Clemson Nugent's first year and Howard cracked that "Clemson would dot Nugent's I," but the Terps won, 28-25, on a 17-yard pass from Dale Betty to Gary Collins with 3:02 to play. The next year at College Park the same combination worked on a seven-yard pass with 3:12 gone in the fourth quarter for a 19-17 win.

At Clemson in '61, John Hannigan kicked a field goal with eight seconds left after recovering a Clemson fumble at the 20 for a 24-21 Maryland win. Nugent, who was known for his innovations, pulled one of them out during this game to score a touchdown, which led Howard to remark that "he beat us on a high school play." When this drifted to the Terp dressing room, Nugent said: "When we play high school teams, we use high school plays," and the fire got even brighter. That was three losses in three years by a total of eight points.

Some of the hurt was eased the next game when Rodney Rogers kicked a 23-yard field goal with 1:24 left for a 17-14 Clemson win. And the two coaches probably had the shortest midfield meeting on record. Nugent said: "Nice game," and Howard said: "Thanks."

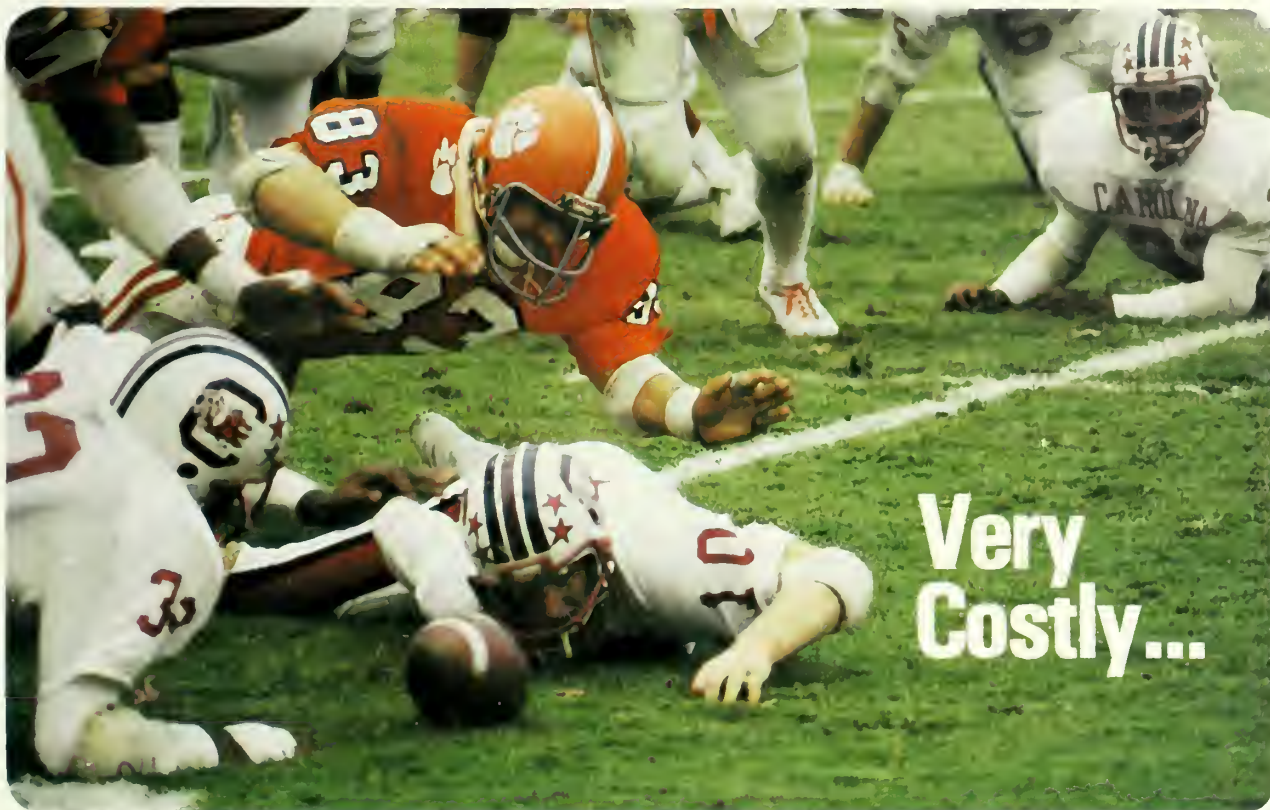

Nugent was fired after the 1965 season, but he was 5-2 against Clemson. Howard wrote him a letter following his dismissal, with some words of encouragement. Nugent later told Howard that he was the only coach who wrote him after he got the axe.

It's not recorded what Howard's remark was upon hearing this. He probably told Nugent to stay out of coaching. Howard followed suit four years later.

Joel Wells electrified the Clemson crowd with a 50-yard run against Maryland in 1955.
